A visual and textual review of the scientific landscape of Lower Austria.

Science and research are key issues of our social fabric, they are multifaceted, people are aware of them...all of these elements are undoubtedly true and yet: the work carried out in these disciplines does not always receive enough recognition. Nowadays, Lower Austria is defined not only through its impressive cultural scene, but also through its scientific focus on a wide range of areas. Scientific institutions can now be found in the most diverse places, and with the most varied starting positions and profiles. These institutions, and the people who carry out their research in them, are at the visual and textual heart of this publication.
